Race #2

(3) COPPER GEM

Exits a strong second against a regally bred Cambria last time out. No disgrace in defeat there, today is a new day and it seems that she is the best in here. It looks as if this is a two horse race, but she will still need to beat the firster Spitefulness, who is most likely her toughest competition in this contest. I don't see much else in her way, and if she runs back the race prior, it is a foregone conclusion.

SPOT PLAY

Race # 4

(2) LITTLE MATT

Huge effort last out at MVR, winning by 9 ¾ lengths. He drops back in her at PID, and if he gets the uncontested lead here he should grow a big heart and go on to win this contest. Not a lot of speed in this race, and even if he is contested he can outfoot the others. I am hoping for at least 4-1 on him.
