BEST BET OF THE DAY

Race #2

(2) SAN CONSTANTINO

A big drop out of the AOC for this Son of Violence, as he is now descending into the claiming ranks ($20k). He has run against some pretty tough customers in his short career. He won't face those types in this event, and looks to be the absolute best in this spot today. He brings forth a good resume, including a stakes placing at Woodbine. Conditioner Tim Hamm is getting aggressive here and looks to add a W in the column.

SPOT PLAY OF THE DAY

Race #4

(4) Extra Medium

Two solid races in a row here at PID, nearly missing by a head last out. He is 9/11 at the distance and has never been off the board (here at PID), and in addition he is from an emerging sire line in Temple City. That Sire's progeny have been absolutely outstanding over this surface. He will face a much lesser group in here today as to what he has faced in his previous starts at PID. Ayala is back aboard, and he should be able to have his Kodak moment this afternoon.
