Best Bet of the Day

Race #4

(1) Jimmy the Hat

Dropping in for half the claiming tag today, Jimmy looks to be extremely good in this spot compared to his rivals. He has thrown up some great speed figures, not only here but also at TP over their Tapeta. Trainer Brandon Kulp is 32% second start after the claim, which is huge. In addition Kulp is never afraid to drop horses in a notch below where they are competitive, just to maximize the chance of victory. With the Meet's Leading Pilot, this son of Jimmy Creed looks like a Winner.

SPOT Play of Day

(4) Diver

This well bred son of Speightstown drops down a notch into the $15k after running a decent 4th last time out at IND. He has solid back class, and his races over the TP tapeta were very decent, finishing second both times. His stalking type of pace should be what is needed here, as there looks to be enough speed for him to chase down. You get the Meet's leading Rider in Gallardo, for a big time outfit.
