Best Bet of the Day

Race #2

5 Brilliant Journey

It looks as if Brilliant Journey may be competing for the lead today with Adios Buccaneer. I would rather see him lay just off of the aforementioned horse's flank, but it seems as if he is a "Catch Me if you can" kind of player. Just barely beat last time out in the same type of race, he has excelled under the leadership of Scooter Davis, and he is phenomenal here at PID, being 5/5 ITM. IROD is back aboard, after winning with him two races back, as the favorite. He looks poised for a picture today.

Spot Play of Day

Race #4

3 Showdown King

He put up a decent number last time out against a good group of horses. He enters back in this race against some old salty geldings that know their way around the racetrack, but this son of Mineshaft is one of those salty boys too. He has been running against some solid horses at this level, in the likes of "Fadethenoise", "Pearl of Aclaim", and Paschal Moon. You get Severino back aboard as the Pilot, and Pappada, one of the most underrated Trainers at PID. A lot of speed which should set this up perfectly for his running style.
